

Glenn Dennett

Principal, Glenn Dennett + Associates

Glenn has over 30 years' experience working as a senior commercial lawyer and lecturer, in professional service firms, multinational corporations and universities.

Glenn has held positions in Sydney, Tokyo, Paris, Geneva, and New York, and has worked closely with corporate Presidents, Vice-Presidents, CEOs, Senior academics and Clinicians on a range of projects and topics.

Glenn now specialises in working with those who work in academia and the professions: law, medicine, accounting, engineering, architecture, education, journalism, and consulting.

Glenn typically works with high potential professionals who want to improve their performance and productivity. His clients are often those who have been identified for possible promotion or been selected to participate in a leadership development program. Some clients want to make a career transition out of their field of expertise, or they might want to return to work after a period of leave, illness, or incapacity.

A focus of his recent work has been on helping professionals to build their inner resilience and wellbeing, particularly in the face of increased change and complexity in the workplace.

Importantly, Glenn brings a strong evidence-based approach to his work, backed by hands-on experience in working with highly trained professionals across all industries.
