

Caroline Sims

Partner, Teece Hodgson & Ward

Caroline is an Accredited Specialist in Wills and Estates Law and is a dual qualified solicitor in New South Wales and in England and Wales. Her work at the firm includes complex estate planning (incorporating advice regarding testamentary trusts and multi-jurisdictional assets and control arrangements), contentious trusts and estates litigation, trusts planning, statutory wills applications, and estate administration, including applications for grants for probate, letters of administration and reseals of grants from other jurisdictions.

Caroline also provides advice (and representation with leave) for financial management and guardianship applications to the New South Wales Civil and Administrative Tribunal (NCAT) and the NCAT Appeal Panel.

Caroline was rated as 'Recommended' in Doyle's Guide Wills, Estates & Succession Planning Lawyers – New South Wales, 2024 and in Doyle's Guide Estate Litigation Lawyers – New South Wales, 2024. Caroline is a co-author (with Richard Neal and with Craig Birtles, now at the Bar and formerly with the firm) of the 10th edition of Hutley's Australian Wills Precedents, Lexis Nexis publishing.
